Our Trip to Richmond. TAKING STATISTICS-DOING THE CITY-A SAD

MISTAKE-" WE'RE GOING HOME." The merchants excursion to Richmond this week was a big affair. Two long trains pulled into the depôt at Richmond, and deposited fully one thousand excursionists.

Of course everybody loves to go on excursions. Excursions are invaluable aids to statisticians. About nightfall we left our seat to hunt water, and in that way came to make statistics. We counted the cars, then the seats, and the people in the seats, over and over again, and each time it came out one seat less for us. We had to stand. We collected and noted many valuable points for statisticians-viz., how long the human system can endure without water, and how soundly one can sleep standing, with back braced against the stove-pipe, etc.

But to return to the excursion. We arrived in Richmond at daylight-the dustiest, dirtiest, worn-out crowd ever emptied into Richmond. After breakfast every one scattered off in various directions to see the city. As for us, we were escorted to a sixhorse turnout and had a delightful drive around the city in company with Major Dame, Tom Evanslof the Reidsville Times, and an old friend of Tom's. After this we visited our editorial brethren of the city. The Dispatch was our general headquarters. If space permitted we could go into a description of its magnificent establishment and handsome corps of editors, but that

At 3 in the evening the excursionists were to take the train for the Fair-Grounds. where the banquet was to be given, and trotting races, glass-ball shooting, etc., wit-We ate no dinner, desiring to save ourself for the banquet and go into it in good fashion, and at the appointed hour started for the depôt. On the way we the meat market was, as usual, well suppassed Tom Evans, and in company with him went on to the cars. We took a seat in a coach, cocked our feet on the back of the seats, and soon both of us were in the land of nod. We had slept a half hour or so when a gentle tap and "Tickets!" roused us. We presented our Fair-Ground tickets to the conductor and he looked surprised. He wanted our other ticket. We told him we're going to the Fair-Grounds to get dinner. He told us we were going to Danville. Yea, it was even so. We had taken the wrong train and were speeding home. We looked at Tom. Tom looked at us. We were thirty miles from Richmond, and the sun was shining intensely bot. "Would we get off and walk back?" the conductor asked. In reply Tom, in a sweet, musical voice, struck up, "We're going home." It was thus we got back sooner than we expected—our only regret being that we left a second-hand valise and an uppaid hotel bill behind. - Concord (N. C.) Sun.

"THAT HOG OF MINE."-The Greenbrier Independent says this is the way it happened: "A few weeks ago a lady friend of ours, of this place, attended the dedication ceremonics of the M. E. Church, South, at Ronceverte. That laughter-provoking preacher Laugherty (Lafferty), editor of the Riehmond Christian Advocate, having delivered one of his best discourses, it afterwards became the duty of the officers of the church to raise a subscription from the congregation present to the payment of the balance due on the construction of the building which had just been dedicated to pious work. The deacons faithfully entered upon their duties, earnestly soliciting aid. Our good friend was approached, and she declared that she did not have a dime about her, and that she was not prepared to sub-scribe one cent. The deacons insisted, but she resisted. They were 'exorable'; she was inexorable. Brother Boude took the stand and narrated an incident. It was about a porker. It was to this effect: A similar appeal had been made on a former occasion at another point. The appealer stated that unless a donation was made the party refusing would lose a hog. There was one obstinate party in the congregation who held out, and would not contribute 'worth a cent.' Returning home, his hog (the only one he had) was found dead, lying with his feet turned towards the skies. The sequel to the story is this: Our lady friend, above referred to, returned to her home from the meeting at Ronceverte, and sure enough her ouly hog was dead in the pen. This is no joke. Truth is sometimes stranger than fiction.

NOT SUCH A FOOL AFTER ALL .- A CETtain German, an eye-doctor by profession, rented a cottage here, and in a day he was satisfied that he had been charged an exorbitant rate. His landlord, as it so happened, was also his milkman; therefore to this milkman the eye-doctor, the first morning he arrived after the discovery of the swindle, said: "Mine friend, vat ish the matter mit your right eye?" There was nothing wrong with the man's eye, but knowing the profession of his questioner, he very naturally took alarm, and he replied: "Nothing; but perhaps I've taken a little cold." "In two months," solemnly went on the doctor, "you will be blind in your right eye, but perhaps I can cure him." The Jerseyman: "But I don't feel any pain; still, if there is any danger, you had better treat me." And he did treat him-I may say he treated him very badly, for in a week or two he actually had the fellow nearly blind. Then he cared him; then followed the bill-a pleasant little document of two or three hundred dollars-and when the amount of the rent of the cottage was deducted the German was considerably in pocket. He smoked his pipe and smiled serenely, as he murmured: 'Dos Jerseyman not so smart as may be." Cape May Letter.

THE NORTH CAROLINA MERCHANTS-THANKS .- Nearly all of the North Carolina merchants left the city on Saturday. Those who remained over Sunday will leave for home to-day.

A meeting of the North Carolina merchants was held at Ford's Hotel at 9 o'clock Saturday morning to express their appreciation of the hospitalities extended to them during their stay in this city. Mr. C. F. Lowe, of Lexington, was called to the hair, and G. F. Shepherd, of Iredell, appointed secretary. After remarks by the chairman a committee on resolutions was appointed, who presented the following, and they were unanimously adopted: Resolved, That we, the merchants of North Carolina, representing the different sections of the State, acknowledge our heartiest appreciation of the generous hospitality and uniform courtesy extended to as by the Richmond merchants and citizens during our sojourn in their thriving and beautiful city. Resolved, That we cordially appreciate the untiring and successful efforts of the committees, whose exertions resulted in such gratifying achievement, as aftested by the magnificent banquet and entertainment at the Fair-Grounds, the charming musical soirée at Mozart Hall, and the delightful excursion down James river, and the uniform good order that pervaded all.

Resolved, That we appreciate the courtesies extended to us on behalf of our Richmond friends by the officers of the Richmond and Danville railroad, and the Western North Carolina railroad, and Milton and Sutherlin Narrow-Gauge, and also the superintendent of the steamboat company for the cheering excursion on the James.

Resolved. That we feel it our duty to acknowledge the kindness of our North Carolina friends, N. K. Roan, A. Mack Hintman, Charles T. Balsey, Junius B. Smith, T. Ruffin Taylor, W. W. Ellington, W. D. Simmons, and other salesmen, who have after such apportionment, to the candidate placed us under many obligations and done so much to draw the trade of North Carolina to this city.
